Anjuman-I-Islam founded in 1874, is a historic, educational and social welfare institution that operates over 100 educational and charitable facilities mainly in Maharashtra, India. Anjuman-I-Islam's Dr. M. Ishaq Jamkhanawala Tibbia Unani Medical College and Haji A. R. Kalsekar Tibbia Hospital has shaped Unani medical education and integrated clinical care in Mumbai since 1968. Affiliated to the Maharashtra University of Health Sciences and approved by the National Commission for Indian System of Medicine, the institution combines academic instruction with direct patient care through its attached Unani and modern hospitals, offering students and faculty integrative clinical exposure alongside classical Unani tradition. The college has contributed substantially to fundamental, experimental and clinical research in various disciplines of Unani medicine. Within this framework, the Department of Moalajat has contributed to national academic development, including Standard Operating Procedures developed by the CCRUM and the NCISM's curriculum framing. It is in this spirit of disciplinary advancement that the department now convenes teachers of Moalajat from across the country for structured engagement with contemporary clinical practice.

The transition of Unani medical education toward a competency-based, outcome-driven curriculum places new demands on teachers of Moalajat, who must equip students with both classical diagnostic and therapeutic reasoning and the capacity to situate that reasoning within evidence-based clinical frameworks. This six-day Continuing Medical Education Programme, organised under the AYUSH AYURGYAN Scheme and structured around its theme, has been designed to support this transition through focused academic sessions, discussion, and skill development.
